

Preparing Communities for Agroterrorism: Awareness-Level

DHS Course #: TBD
Training Level: Awareness

Hours: 4.0
Format: Online Training

Description

The Preparing Communities for Agroterrorism: Awareness Level online training course provides participants an awareness-level understanding of the threat, impact, and response needs involved in an act of agricultural terrorism. The course provides participants with competency in the following areas: awareness of possible targets of opportunity in their region; development of an infrastructure of community sources; and development of a plan to identify, collect, and share information with state and federal agencies.

Primary Audience

This course targets anyone interested in raising their awareness of the impact of agroterrorism. Because the target audience for this course is comprehensive, course participants may include managers (farm/field/plant managers; trade associations; county emergency response; quality assurance personnel); emergency responders (police, fire, EMT, State and Federal agencies, including public health, environment departments, livestock boards, and the USDA); plant/animal processing/fresh-packing/distribution; educators; extension services; veterinarians; and healthcare providers (emergency rooms, freestanding clinics, physicians, nurses).
