This course provides awareness-level training on the triggers related to various disease containment measures as well as detailed information on the declaration, implementation, and demobilization efforts required during these type of events. The course focuses on the roles of community agencies as well as how these agencies must integrate their efforts to successfully respond to a disease-related emergency. Case studies are used to provide real-life exposure to social distancing, quarantine, and isolation events.

Professional Disciplines: Emergency Medical Services, Fire Service, Hazardous Materials Personnel, Healthcare, Law Enforcement, Public Health

The primary target audience for this course includes:
- Public health officials
- State and local judicial branch representatives
- Law enforcement personnel

The secondary target audience for this course includes:
- Medical services
- Medical personnel
- School nurses
- City leadership
- Transportation managers
- Business representatives
- Individuals in other civic roles